

How do we determine how good a fit our line is ?

- We could work out by how much each observed value differs from the mean of y .
- We could work out by how much each observed value differs from the regression line.
- We could work out by how much the mean value of y differs from the regression line (for different values of x).

How much each observed value differs from the mean of y (called SS_T):

